

Face to Face

- Eisenhower Fellowships Women Convening in Conversation

Established in 1953 on behalf of President Dwight D. Eisenhower, Eisenhower Fellowships (EF) inspires leaders around the world to challenge themselves, to envision how they can effect positive change, to engage others beyond their existing networks and to collaborate with other like-minded leaders across national borders to better the world around them.

The Eisenhower Fellowship's women's leadership network is a highly accomplished group of nearly 700 global trailblazers from diverse professional fields. A thriving community of female leaders united by the collective pursuit of a world more peaceful, prosperous and just.

- Join an international network of female students, to seek advice, mentorship and encouragement from your international peers
- Receive coaching, guidance and mentorship from the women's leadership network of Eisenhower Fellowships.
- Participate in three to four virtual sessions with your peers from another country. They will be open, constructive and facilitated dialogues on topics relevant to female empowerment, skill development, education, career planning and personal development.
- Complete online assignments to build skills, including language and cultural exchange, collaborative projects, and discussions on various academic and extracurricular subjects.
- At the end of the program, you and your peers will elect a representative to present your collaborative project to a wider audience of peers. Upon completion, you will receive a certificate and can add the program to your CV.

The EF 'Face to Face' program aims to empower and connect innovative leaders with the next generation, and to build lifelong engagement in a global network of dynamic change agents committed to creating a world more peaceful, prosperous and just.
